hunting down prizes and has the skill to present everything in the nicest way. We were very lucky that Nutro came to the party big time. Hopefully the rep Karen will get some good orders for all the effort she went to for us. I personally feed Nutro and find it a very good dry food.

Well the 2005 Championship show went off well and by all feedback was enjoyed by most even though it was bitterly cold. It was great to have so much sponsorship and see so many of our members from up Auckland way making the trip down even though the Desert road was closed. Congratulations to all the winners but especially to Jude McCormick for going BIS with Silvertips A Dream of Destiny (Dreamer).

Thanks to a very hard working Committee and helpers the 05 Championship Show was a high quality event. Even with an experienced Committee the champ show is still a large event for us all to manage and get right. Each person has a part to play and thanks to the way the committee work together it comes together nicely and for all to enjoy. The trophy table looked great and I think you will all agree the prizes were definitely worth winning if you were lucky enough. Lorraine does a great job of The towels embroidered by Paddy Watts for the judge and stewards were once again a big hit. Thanks Paddy – Lynette loved her Dobie towel. Thanks also to Noel our trusty ring steward; Anita Fraser for selling tickets for the raffles donated by Nutro (won by Simeon) and Jo-Anne (won by Lorraine); Denise Klaaysen for taking photos of the winners; Lauren for marking the catalogues and keeping the points for the best owner and kennel; Wanda for making the certificates for the place winners; Anita A for being show secretary (first time for a championship show – didn't she do well!!!); Simeon for being show manager and producing the catalogue; Carol Horne for preparing and serving the judge's lunch and not forgetting Simonne and Jo-Anne for helping as required. I hope I have not missed anyone off this list – at times it was all hands to the deck.

It was nice that most people were present for the prize giving. I think it nice for your achievements to be acknowledged with you there. I was rapt to be the first person to win the Club's new obedience cup with Taiza. Lorraine donated the cup in memory of Samson who did well at obedience. Hopefully more people will start competing with their Sams in obedience and remember to claim their wins from me as point's steward.

Personally I like the format we have established for our championship shows followed by the prize giving but I don't want to become complacent so feedback and suggestions for any improvements most welcome.

Next big event on the calendar will be the Open show. This show is not advertised in the Kennel Gazette so please use the schedule in this magazine for your entries.

The Samoyed X mentioned in the last magazine is still looking for a new home if anyone is interested. Her time is starting to run out.

All the best and take care with all these winter flus about.

- Lynne

SECRETARY'S REPORT

Hi all

Our championship show went really well earlier this month. I would personally like to thank all committee members for putting in the "hard yards" and ensuring we had a successful show. Our trophy table looked absolutely fabulous. Thanks to Lorraine for the wonderful job she does with the trophies and prizes and congratulations to all the winners.

Our product sponsor Nutro was very generous and we would like to continue this association with them. Please support them wherever you can. I also ask that if you won Nutro at the champ show, that you hold onto the bar codes in case they are required in the future.

I have had a few problems lately with my computer at home. I have had to re-do the "Samgratulations" page as cannot retrieve from my hard drive at this stage. I have my personal IT specialist working on the problem as I write this. Hopefully I will be back, up and running in no time. Apologies for any results that have been accidentally omitted. I will ensure these are included in the next magazine.

I know Wanda would appreciate any articles, reports and jokes that could help her fill the magazine. She has done a fantastic job so far. I always look forward to receiving my magazine and having a good read.

We are planning to hold our Open Show in conjunction with Wellington Ladies Kennel Assn on 20th August. Complete details are included within this issue.

A ribbon parade is planned for later in the year. Date, venue and judge will be advised in due course.

Catch you around the ring
Cheers
Anita

Ch Samways Coolascanbe (Mishka)

1.06.96 – 15.07.05

No more pain for you now boy, up in heaven running with Conan (Ch Sunshine Dazzling Power), who were for the most part good mates. He had a wonderful temperament and was a real gentleman who used to cross his front paws over when at rest. He would give any newcomer who stopped to stay hello his paw.

One of his favourite places was the Manawatu lagoon, and if off the lead would leap in and swim with the ducks.

THANK YOU

Nothing looks worse than a white coated dog that is dirty or has a yellow tinge. That is why we have developed Dazzle Dog, a rich performance shampoo that not only conditions but also contains a revolutionary optical whitener to give animals an outstanding appearance. It is not a bleach and it will not harm the coat or make it brittle and it is not a blue stone, the old fashioned way of removing off-white coats. Dazzle Dog is safe to use parts of all ages. Just try it and you will see the difference.

D E A R C A T S A N D D O G S ,

Dear Dogs and Cats,

The dishes with the paw print are yours and contain your food. The other dishes are mine and contain my food. Please note, placing a paw print in the middle of my plate and food does not stake a claim for it becoming your food and dish, nor do I find that aesthetically pleasing in the slightest.

The hallway was not designed by NASCAR and is not a racetrack. Beating me to the other end is not the object. Tripping me doesn't help because I fall faster than you can run.

I cannot buy anything bigger than a king sized bed. I am very sorry about this. Do not think I will continue sleeping on the couch to ensure your comfort. Dogs and cats can actually curl up in a ball when they sleep. It is not necessary to sleep perpendicular to each other stretched out to the fullest extent possible. I also know that sticking tails straight out and having tongues hanging out the other end to maximize space is nothing but sarcasm.

For the last time, there is not a secret exit from the bathroom. If by some miracle I beat you there and manage to get the door shut, it is not necessary to claw, whine, meow, try to turn the knob or get your paw under the edge and try to pull the door open. I must exit through the same door I entered. Also, I have been using the bathroom for years — canine or feline attendance is not mandatory.

The proper order is kiss me, then go smell the other dog or cat's butt. I cannot stress this enough!

To pacify you, my dear pets, I have posted the following message on our front door:

Rules for Non-Pet Owners Who Visit and like to Complain About Our Pets

1. They live here. You don't.
2. If you don't want their hair on your clothes, stay off the furniture (that's why they call it "fur"niture.)
3. I like my pets a lot better than I like most people.
4. To you, it's an animal. To me, he/she is an adopted son/daughter who is short, hairy, walks on all fours and doesn't speak clearly. Dogs and cats are better than kids ....they eat less, don't ask for money all the time, are easier to train, usually come when called, never drive your car, don't hang out with drug-using friends, don't smoke or drink, don't worry about having to buy the latest fashions, don't wear your clothes, and don't need a gazillion dollars for uni - and if they get pregnant, you can sell the children.

" YOU ARE THE GREATEST TEACHER "

Ron Hevener
 Author, "The Blue Ribbon"
 and "Fate of the Stallion"

Having a kennel and loving dogs, I'm lucky enough to meet a lot of people they are important to; people from all walks of life.

Today, the dogs we love and care for have a great affect on how we look at the world around us. Dogs are in the news, in movies, books,

*Dogs are in the news, in movies, books,
 and all kinds
 of
 advertisements.*

What is their appeal?

tisements. What is their appeal? We know the answer to that. Dogs appeal to every sense we have, from visual to touch, and the magical result is the most powerful appeal of all ... emotional.

Forget about the evolutionary history of dogs and worrying about how they may have come into being. Forget about making television documentaries about which breed was the "Original Dog" and traveling to exotic places to find the last remaining members of that breed on Earth. That's all grand in a National Geographic kind of way, but the truth is lost in so many forgotten memories that it doesn't matter to the dog in your life right now. What matters is the diversity of this species, and the possibility that there was no single original breed.

Do I believe in spontaneous genetics and things like that? Oh, yes; very much so. I also believe the emotional make-up of a living creature, and its mentality, are affected by its physical appearance. But, that could be my years of dog shows, raising just about every breed of dog there is at one time or another, or the artist in me speaking.

We all know our own personalities can rub off on our dogs. We know dogs are different from cats or birds or horses and other animals in their basic nature. Along those lines, customers at our kennel often ask which puppy in a litter is the ruler, which is the most loving or which is the most playful. Sometimes, when looking at a puppy by itself and searching for an emotional connection with this prospective fur-child, customers will ask if I think the pup will turn out this way or that. When I say it depends on them more than anything else, they are often surprised. "The dog is going to learn from you," I say. "You are the greatest teacher."

Here at our kennels,

sometimes we raise whole litters together and we have a graduation system, like in school. Littermates start out together, but as they become more dominant, or according to their growth and the special feeding they may require along the way, they move up the ladder into the next run. They haven't lost sight of their littermates because they are in the next kennel run beside them. And the new kennel mates aren't strangers either because they've been housed next to each other for a while. The result is, our litters don't have just one dominant pup with a bunch of followers. Instead, what we have is a bunch of confident, independent thinkers.

When I say, "You are the greatest teacher" I'm not speaking about rigid discipline such as one endures in Obedience classes. Maybe "rigid" isn't the right word for that, but I think it illustrates the difference between fundamental training and the invisible "something" beyond that which develops between you and your dog just by traveling the same path in life. In my novel "Fate of the Stallion," this mysterious bond is expressed in a scene where Dan Marshall senses the presence of an Arabian stallion running along the river beside him. The horse seems to be calling him, as if saying "Find me! I am yours!" and the story reveals the parallels of their lives, showing how man and stallion share the same fate. Likewise, in "The Blue Ribbon" a novel set in the competitive world of dog shows, there is a scene called "Miles To Go." In this scene, Robert Sheffield, a dog show judge loved by two different women who own rival kennels, is hiking in the Canadian woods with his dog, reflecting on love. If you'll notice, the path in the woods symbolizes Robert's own path in life, and his dog is right there beside him. Like many of us do, Robert is thinking to his dog in a mental conversation, wondering if he has made the right decision by letting the woman he really loves slip through his fingers. Among the trees, the dog sees a deer, runs after it, but, of course, the deer gets away. "She got away?" Robert asks. "It's OK, fella. We've got miles to go." In those miles, will there be other deer? Will they see the same deer again? I wasn't sure when I wrote that scene how it would turn out.

Dogs have an emotional appeal that covers our widest range of feeling. In my writing, whether about dogs or horses, the stories often deal with keeping our sense of love alive. Over and over again, at book signings and lectures, I am asked "What does keeping love alive matter to a man like you, who has everything he could possibly want and more than he can handle? I guess my reputation for playfulness has something to do with that. Surely, someone like me doesn't have a care in the world! I say this with tongue in cheek, of course. Married at nineteen, a father soon after that and selling my artwork as souvenirs to tourists, you could say I've been around the block a few times. In fact, I'd say I've been around the block and all over the neighbourhood! I've met many people in that neighbourhood and I've come to believe our ability to love is eroded by the rotten things that happen to us. It is also nurtured by anything that makes us feel good and important.

As an artist, my studio has been committed to uplifting, encouraging work such as the Hevener figurines and paintings for over thirty years now. Very few animal lovers are not familiar with our collectible figurines with their open expressions and smiling faces. Even The Antiques Road Show has featured them. And all of our figurines, prints, books or CDs are made in honor of the animals who keep alive our ability to love, in a world where it is very difficult to do so.

Let's talk about that world.

Today, we are facing a crumbling economy. Let me rephrase that. We're not facing a crumbling economy; we're in it. Just about everywhere we turn, something is falling apart. All of us know people who have lost their jobs. All of us see businesses closing. All of us see odd legislation being passed – things we never would have considered before the day in September that changed it all.

There is an uneasiness around us. And it's growing. As we deal with serious issues more and more, as our families fracture and our natures become more hardened, our pets become a comfort to us and sometimes the only way to keep our hearts open.

At a recent high school appearance, I spoke in the auditorium about the many things people can do with their lives; the many adventures they can have in the creative fields I know something about. Publishing, the record business, television, movies, horse racing, dog shows, horse shows, the art world; surely I could open doors for them in an exciting array of life's opportunities. But, looking around that auditorium, I saw no spark of interest or imagination. As we left that school, I said to my assistant, "Maxine, this is the first time I can ever remember not even reaching one soul." And I asked myself what kind of society would want zombie-like citizens such as I had just seen. Was it an "inner city" school I had just been to? Yes. Was it New York or Chicago or Philadelphia? No. It was a school in the town of Lancaster, Pennsylvania; in the county known for its industrious Pennsylvania Dutch; the county in which I live. Were they Pennsylvania Dutch kids I was speaking with? No, they were not. In much the same way that Hawaii was invaded by outsiders and the values of its native population changed forever, Lancaster County has changed and I doubt if there was even one student of Pennsylvania Dutch background in that school. This is serious. It's why teachers are giving up. And it has happened in our lifetime!

The hopelessness of those students mirrored the hopelessness of their homes. But I knew these kids had pets at home, too. How did I know? I asked them. In a show of hands, reluctant at first, I had found out how many had horses, dogs, cats, fish and other pets. And I thought to myself, this is the first thing they're responding to a world where so much is out of their control, they don't feel like they can reach the lofty things I'm talking about and maybe they can't. But they can have an influence on their pets, and that's a start.

Today, right now, pets are more important than ever. In order to keep pets and take care of them, we have to provide for them. To provide for your pet, you have to buy food. Which is best, you wonder?

You must take your pet to the veterinarian. Who is the best vet around, you ask?

If you want a litter of puppies, you must find a mate. Where do I find the perfect match, you ask, searching out the local kennel club.

When the pups are born, it's one of the most magical experiences of your life. You'll always remember it. Now, you must raise them and for the next couple of months you will do everything you can to raise them well. You'll have paper work to fill out: registrations and pedigrees to prepare and sign. You'll meet new people when families come to you for the puppies you brought into the world. Everywhere your pet takes you, it means dealing with other people, talking things over and finding out what works for you. Before you know it, you have a lifestyle and a reason to live.

That school of the zombies? It took me a while, but I finally figured it out. They didn't want to see an author that day. They wanted a ray of hope. I guess I should have brought a puppy with me.

Next time, I'll remember that.

HOME DENTAL CARE

Three Steps to Success

STEP 1

Take your pet to the veterinarian for a dental exam. Don't wait for his annual checkup if you suspect a problem.

STEP 2

Begin a dental care regimen at home. Your veterinarian can suggest steps that may include brushing your pet's teeth. One of the most convenient and effective ways to combat oral disease is feeding specially formulated foods proven effective in combating plaque and tartar buildup.

STEP 3

Schedule regular veterinary checkups. These are essential in helping your veterinarian monitor the progress of your pet's dental health routine. At least an annual visit is very important.

HOW TO BRUSH YOUR DOGS TEETH

Introduce a brushing program to pets gradually. Avoid over-restraining your pet and keep brushing sessions short and positive. A cat or small dog can be held in your lap. Praise and reassure your pet throughout the process.

At first, dip a finger into beef bouillon for dogs or tuna water for cats. Rub the soaked finger gently over the pet's mouth and teeth. Make the initial sessions short and positive.

Gradually, introduce gauze over the finger and gently scrub the teeth in a circular motion.

Finally, you can introduce a soft toothbrush designed for pets. Use a sensitive or ultra-soft brush designed for people or a brush designed for pets. Special pet toothbrushes are available from your veterinarian or specialty pet store. Don't use toothpaste designed for people because it could upset the animal's stomach.

HOW CAN I TELL IF MY DOG OR CAT HAS GUM DISEASE?

If your pet will allow it, open its mouth and look inside. Look for the warning signs of gum disease – bad breath, red and swollen gums, a yellow-brown crust of tartar around the gumline, and pain or bleeding when you touch the gums or mouth. Seek veterinary care if you notice any of these problems.

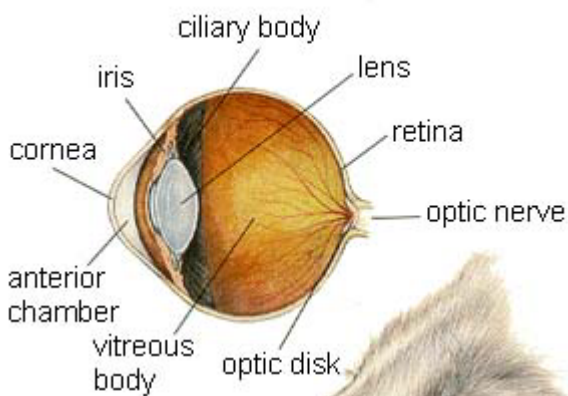

You can see in this photo that this pet has plaque and tartar build-up on its teeth. A professional examination administered by the family veterinarian should be done now to determine whether a cleaning is required.

SPECIAL SENSES OF THE DOG

The organs of special senses allow the animal to interact with its environment; sight, taste, smell and hearing.
